President Hogan lunches in Fox; tries to motivate students against cuts

by Joe Reppucci

On Tuesday President Hogan had lunch in the Fox hall cafeteria and spoke to the students on several issues concerning the state's fiscal problems which affect ULowell. While he ate, Pres. Hogan held a discussion with several students about the school's finances and the importance of higher education in this state. He stressed the importance of higher ed. in Massachusetts as a way to compete in international markets and to strengthen the state's economy. Pres. Hogan also urged everyone at the table to get involved and vote. He said the students need to "Fight the battle, don't be silent."

Pres. Hogan then gave a brief speech to everyone in the cafe. He stated that he needed to give a clearer view of the situation because the students seem to be getting mixed signals as to the importance of higher education to this state. Pres. Hogan acknowledged the seriousness of the problem but assured everyone that classes and the the University's accreditations will be saved. He said that the delay in schedule processing is only to adjust next semester's schedule to any necessary changes.

Pres. Hogan urged all students to vote and make themselves heard, however he also tried to give everyone a sense of confidence because the university can survive, it will only be a matter of time.

Pres. Hogan was available for questions after his speech and restated his confidence in ULowell's survivability. He attempted to clear up misunderstandings about the fiscal situation and let students know that ULowell's administration will help students make a difference

ULowell students walk to help raise $10,000 for mental retardation charity

PRESS RELEASE

Students from the University of Lowell, despite the misty, rainy morning, walked 10 miles in the "Keep the Hope Alive Walkathon" to benefit the programs of Fidelity House, Inc., a non-profit organization, providing vital residential and community support services for people with mental retardation in the Greater-Lawrence area.

ULowell resident hall students from Concordia, New South, Bourgeois, and Fox - accompanied by students from the Community Services Organization - teamed up with Merrimack students on to raise over $8000 in cash and $2000 in pledges yet to be collected.

Coordinating student participation in the walkathon from ULowell were Resident Advisors: Carlene Carabino, Christine Brochu, Kayrn Shippee, and Dan Cox. Resident Hall Members were: Kim Cobly, Joe Pegolio, Jen Porter, Allison Crouse, Carla Benson, Laura Polichitti, Janice Lavery, Laura Lee, Sheila Sablon, Theresa Willis and Tom Ryan. Tom Golden recruited members of the Community Services Organization which included, Beth Dudley, Bill Cullen, Brenda Coughlin, John Regan, Michelle Marquis, Pat Diette, Lisa Hansford, Andy Kelly, Steve O'Malley, Jennifer Lindsey, Angela Nolan, Kelly Ryan, Jean Rodrigues, Jennifer Morse, Tracy Ryan, Chris Dowd and Jason Gittle.

"We were just overwhelmed at the number of students that turned out for the walkathon", says Yvonne Allard, the Executive Director of Fidelity House. "We sincerely thank all those who participated and helped to make this a truly successful event."

Running Strong: U. Lowell Student Writes to Survive

by Judith Dickerman Nelson

Richard Farrell is a full-time student at the University of Lowell. Like many students he has been busy studying for mid-terms, but that is where the similarity ends. Farrell, 33, is a recovering cocaine and heroin addict who has seen more hell than most of us, and that is how he would like to keep it.

Farrell wrote and produced a film to help deter others from drug abuse. The film, called "Shadow of Addiction," will be shown in the Lowell school system. The school committee viewed and approved the video last week for use at the junior and senior high schools. Farrell plans to go into the classrooms for an hour, show his video, and talk about the dangers of drug abuse. I asked Farrell why he was willing to give so much time and he said, "My hope is to bring people on a guided tour through hell so that they may never have to experience it themselves."

The film, "Shadow of Addiction," is divided into three sections. The first section takes place at an operating crack house in Lowell. These are the places Farrell has known and these are Farrell's friends—they allow him in and we get an intimate look at their lives. The second section takes place in a maximum security prison and the third section is an interview with a friend of Farrell's who is on death row. It is a frightening depiction of a way of life Farrell has known all too well.

Fox inter-roommate clash turns nasty

by Jason Butze and Ellen Barre

On Thursday October 18, at approximately 9:00, Matthew Aripino, a mechanical engineering student from Sudbury, was allegedly stabbed in the stomach by his roommate William Murphy. Aripino, 18, was taken to Lowell General Hospital for treatment. He was released from the hospital later that night.

The alleged incident took place while the two students were watching a Patriot football game in Fox 1615. Chief Rowe said "Alcohol was involved and it is fair to say it emanated out of a disagreement between the victim and the alleged assailant."

Resident Advisor Greg Cook was the first person on the scene. He called an ambulance, the university police, and Mike Courmoyer (the other RA on the 16th floor). Three ULowell Police Officers, Michael Smith, Patricia Reardon and William Gray, responded to the call. Murphy was arrested by Smith and charged with assault and battery with a deadly weapon and attempted murder. Inspector David Tausignant of the Lowell Police, and student E.M.T.s, Bob Welton and J. Doty were also on the scene according to Chief Rowe.

William Murphy, 18, an electrical engineering student from South Boston, was arraigned on Friday October 19, at Lowell District Court, and released on his own recognizance. His case was continued until November 16, stated Police Chief Rowe.

According to Dean King, the knife allegedly used by Murphy belonged to the other student sharing the room, Derek Bubon. Bubon, 18, is an elec-

Grad killed in accident

by Michelle Tellier

Patrick Dugan, 24, a nuclear physics graduate student at ULowell was killed in a car accident Sunday October 21.

According to the Andover State police, at approximately 9:00pm, Dugan drove into a tractor trailer truck which was making a left turn on Rt 133 in Tewksbury. Dugan's 1973 Volkswagen Beetle's roof peeled back as the car became wedged beneath the middle cargo portion of the truck and was dragged for about 15ft before coming to a stop against the rear wheels of the truck. Dugan was apparently driving with his parking lights but without his car's headlights on.

Driver of the truck, Steven Foster, 24, stated he did not see Dugan's car approaching before turning. No charges have been filed against Foster.

Dugan was a 2nd year graduate student here at ULowell and a teaching assistant in the Physics department. Memorial services were held this morning in Bennington NH. Donations in his memory may be made to the Congregational Church in Bennington c/o Mrs William Cleary, Treasurer, Bennington, NH 03442.

Adult Children of Alcoholic Support Groups

Adult Children of Alcoholics are people whose lives have been affected by the drinking of a family member or close friend. Even though, you may not have a problem with alcohol, someone else's drinking may interfere with your life in a very serious way ... like a mother or father who is always drunk or a boy friend or a girl friend who frequently mess up a date by drinking too much.

Adult Children of Alcoholics get together to support each other and to overcome the negative affects that other people's behavior can sometime have on us.

If this describes you, then please plan to join in one of the ACoA support groups which will meet this semester: Mondays: 12 noon to 1:30pm in Fox 608A and Thursday: Noon to 1pm: South SUB 334.

For more information, please contact Sister Gail at 454-0151.

Catholic Center Retreat

The Catholic Center's Fall Retreat is set for the weekend before Thanksgiving, November 16-18 and will take place at the same place as last year's retreat: a scenic lake front house in Sandwich on Cape Cod. The theme for this year's adventure is: The Journey Inward, Outward and Forward. Our retreat team has been hard at work figuring out the particulars of what will be an enjoyable and rewarding weekend. The cost of the weekend is $10. per person and we are asking folks to include a $5. deposit with their application. Applications are available after masses on the weekends or at the Catholic Center anytime. .... Last year the retreat weekend proved to be an excellent way for people to make some new friends on a deeper level than is usually possible. The non-judgmental atmosphere and climate of genuine caring that is at the heart of a good retreat made these new friendships possible. So, if you are looking to recharge your batteries, get some extra adrenalin to finish out the semester and have a great weekend in the process, don't delay and sign up for the retreat today!!! (We will plan to leave the Catholic Center by 5:00pm on Friday, Nov. 16th and return by Sunday at 2:30p.m.) Since Thanksgiving week is a short week for classes, we thought this weekend would be great timing !!!

Holy Day:

Thursday November 1

Next Thursday, November 1 is a Holy Day in the Catholic Church. This is the Feast of All Saints. On this day we celebrate the memories of all those people who have gone before us in life and who, we believe, have achieved the crowning glory of life: a place in heaven for all time. We believe that we continue to be united with these "saints" through our understanding of the "Communion of Saints" that we speak of whenever we say the Creed at Sunday mass. On the Feast of All Saints, we pray to God in thanksgiving for the gift of their lives and that we can imitate their holiness in our own. In this way, we honor their memory, seek their intercession and challenge ourselves by the example of their lives.

their own self-worth so they won't need to take drugs. He says people take drugs because they don't feel good about themselves.

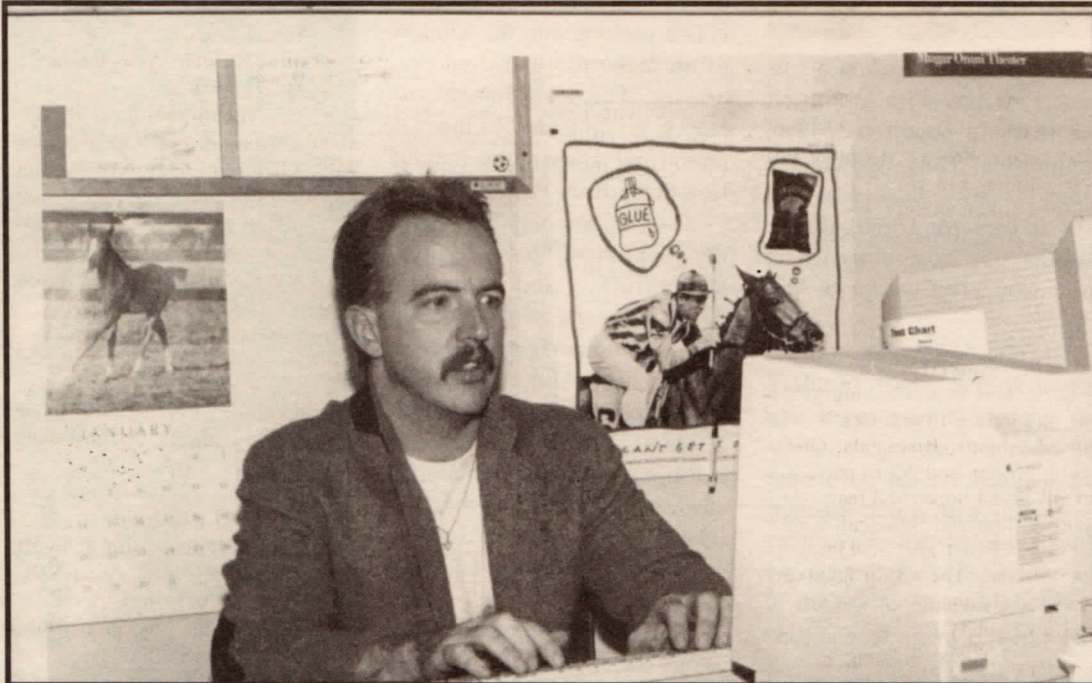

The past life that Farrell led did not make him feel good about himself. He was involved with organized crime, he was a drug smuggler, and he was an addict. But now Farrell has hope. He has been drug free since April of 1987 and has been turning his life around ever since. He wants to share his past with others in order to help. Farrell says, "If I can save one child from what I've gone through, then it will all be worth it."

Farrell is an English major here at U. Lowell and lives here in the city with his wife and four children. He is a writer and his work has been published in Voice magazine, the Lowell Sun, and the Boston Globe. He is currently working on a novel. The novel is an attempt to look at his own life through fiction.

Writing is his passion now. In the world of fiction Farrell can re-experience the terror of witnessing a senseless murder; he can re-create, on paper, how it feels to fly—crazy high; and he can hold these incidents up to the light like a prism—search for truth at a safe distance.

Richard Farrell writes to examine life, he writes to feel, and he writes to chase the ghosts of the past. Writing is the only place where he can stare into the eyes of his demon and still make it. Richard Farrell writes to survive.

Crime fears on campus spark big sales of security devices

(CPS) - Fear of campus crime, spurred in part by the August murders of five collegians in Gainesville, Fla., has sparked brisk sales of security devices to students at some schools.

"College communities are becoming increasingly aware of and concerned over the many dangers that face students on a day-to-day basis," says Sean Tallarico, director of security and safety at Moravian College in Pennsylvania.

As part of its new Operation Alert, Moravian has started offering "screaming flashlights" - portable flashlight/alarms that sound a high-pitched siren when a switch is pressed or when the carrying strap is pulled from its socket - to freshmen on a trial basis. At the end of the semester, the students can either buy it or return it.

Nearby Wilkes University started offering the "Alarm Light," manufactured by Fields Enterprises in Kingstown, Pa., last year. State University of New York-Purchase, Syracuse University, St. Mary's College in Maryland, and Cedar Crest College, King's College and the Philadelphia College of Pharmacy and Science, all three in Pennsylvania, are also trying out the Alarm Light said manufacturer Matt Fields.

"I'm very happy with it," Tallarico said. "It's a good safety thing for our students to carry with them."

Similarly, ZEI Corporation, a Miami-based firm, is selling a portable security alarm to students.

"It gives these students the protection they need," maintains designer Lincoln Zonn, who said University of Florida (UF) students snatched up 1,000 of his devices in one day. He's also sold quite a few to students at Northeastern University in Boston, where a student was murdered last year.

The murders of five students within three days in Gainesville the last week of August prompted widespread panic on the UF campus. Many left for home just as classes were starting. Some who stayed held large slumber parties for protection. The student paper, the Independent Alligator, suddenly got an influx of ads for mace, tear gas and stun guns.

Kuwait: Inside view III

Peter Kollias is a student at the University of Lowell and is currently interested in studying political science. He spent 14 years in Kuwait where he went to the American school of Kuwait until his junior year.

Geoffrey M. Pahl is an English major and the senior News Editor for the Connector.

GP: Were there any U.S. troops around?

PK: No. There were only the ones stationed at the embassy and that was it. Now with the ones that are stationed in Saudi, the Saudis are worried about a sort of cultural conflict between the troops and the locals. I personally have my serious doubts that anything of that sort will happen in the near future. Perhaps after an extended occupation, but not any time soon. After all, the troops are there to defend Saudi Arabia, aren't they? The Saudis are worried what could happen. There are women among the troops stationed over there and their habits alone could cause trouble. The dress code for the women in Saudi, not the troops, was strict. No short-sleeve shirts, heads covered and no short skirts or trousers. The troops alone defy the dress code, not that they were instructed to abide by it but it stresses things.

GP: So, are you worried about friends back there?

PK: Yes, as a matter of fact, I have a friend, an Iraqi, whom I thought was dead, then I heard he was drafted into the Iraqi army, and now I hear that he is alive and hiding from the draft. Some other friends of mine had their parents stuck back there for a while and didn't hear from them until they were actually out of the country. The kids were usually sent on their summer vacation and the parents followed when they could. In this case they couldn't follow and no one knew if they were actually dead or alive.

GP: Had people ever thought about this? Did Kuwait have much of a military? Were they ever worried about other countries attacking them?

PK: There was a threat from Iraq, Jordan, Saudi Arabia and Iran. Not a threat in the real sense but a threat

in the sense that they had a border with them. Jordan, well not really a threat at all. They gave them hoards of money as "loans", which they knew couldn't be returned. Saudi Arabia: they were like brothers. Iraq and Iran: the threat always existed. Iraq wanted the oil that Kuwait had and Iran wanted Iraq and Kuwait and the oil. There always existed a threat due to another factor. Iran and Iraq, among with many others, were the third world countries amongst their oil-rich neighbors. They were jealous in a sense. The Saudis and the Kuwaitis lived it up royally while the other countries struggled to feed and educate their population. Not an easy task when you don't have the resources. Iran showed their discontent when they launched the Silkworm missile, at Kuwait. Of course a day later the Iranians apologized profusely about the incident, and for all I know they claimed that the missile had a faulty guidance system. Yeah, okay! Now I think that they're waiting for winter. To answer the question about the army or military that Kuwait had. No they didn't have much of a military at all. They had a small army and minimal amounts of equipment with which to defend the country.

GP: The U.S. gets criticized a lot for dealing with the Middle East without understanding the motivations there and the the become prejudiced. The Arabs believe in themselves as a community, with Islam at its head. Presently, for example, the Iraqis want the American and other forces to pull out of Saudi Arabia and solve the problem among themselves and on their own. They strongly support each other. Now when someone from the outside comes in and decides that they're going to change something then that is when the temperature boils. They certainly don't want anyone messing in their affairs. They think of themselves as one big family. Perhaps they have a few minor differences among themselves but they

GP: Okay, so how are their values different?

PK: Again, what they value is their religion and unity among themselves. You can't really blame them. It's the way they are brought up. The environmental surroundings, a whole lot of things. The kids here in the U.S. have malls, arcades, a good school, and for the most part a nice home. In Kuwait for example, we didn't have malls until 1986. Good schools cost money, especially good schools with good teachers in them. The kids weren't given things to do. It all makes a difference. So for example, if the government tells you that the Israelis are wrong and the Palestinians are right, then you believe it, because you don't know any better and you haven't heard the other side of the story. There are so many different causes for the way people behave, and I couldn't possibly tell you about all of them. Perhaps that is why the western world calls them barbarians, because they are so hard to convince. They don't want to believe anything different. Unless they've had an education outside of their own country in a foreign university, and even then, it is not an easy task.

More next week!

A ringing success

by Joe Blair

The MRT has kicked off its winter season with a winner, and if this production of Jean Anouilh's "Ring Around the Moon" is any indication of new artistic director David Kent's abilities, the Lowell area is in for a wonderful winter of theater.

The plot is complex, and the humor is lush. Twin brothers, one a philandering rogue and the other a stuttering romantic, are involved in a cat-and-mouse love affair with a rich ingenue. While this sordid chase goes on, the ingenue's father throws away his fortune in search of happiness, a piano teacher and her daughter play-act the role of nobility, while a bewildered butler can only shrug and shake his head at the crumbling state of propriety.

The action unfolds on a small scale. There is only one set, and watching these small people reveal the small complexities of their small lives on stage is like peeking into the window of an elaborately crafted doll house. The workmanship is flawless and the humor is charming, even if the themes lean towards the roccoco.

Derek Campbell, who plays the chagrined butler, is lovably stuffy, and Jonathan Epstein as the yin and yang twins is the perfect sentimental/rake. But Alice White, who plays the patronizing maven, Madame Desmortes, delivers her lines with such wonderful sardonic distinction that the other players seem to dwindle even smaller when she takes the stage.

Anouilh lends a light-hearted air to his characters. His aim seems more to entertain than to drain the brain. So if you have ever laughed, or lied, or fallen in love, "Ring Around the Moon" is being performed right now at the MRT especially for you.

Three Men and a Baby and a Ghost?

by Sandi Gillis

With Halloween approaching we tend to hear more about witches, vampires, ghosts and other spooky beings. Rumors about strange and creepy happenings make their way around to those who want to believe them, and haunted houses become popular. We all know most of the hype is purely due to the season, and therefore is fictional, but it's fun to believe a little of it and wonder if "there really is such thing as ghosts."

Recently, I heard a ghost story that might actually be true. I even saw what may be evidence. I'm talking about the movie "Three Men and a Baby".

Apparently, the movie was filmed in an apartment where a little boy was killed. Some say he shot himself with a shotgun, others say he jumped out the window to his death, and still others say he was kidnapped and shot by his captor. Anyway, the majority of people I asked who knew about this present day ghost story say the boy shot himself with a shotgun in this apartment where "Three Men and a Baby" was filmed. I thought this to be kind of creepy and wondered how Ted Danza and Tom Selleck felt in such a place, but that's not even the worst of it.

It was said that the little boy's ghost appeared while they were filming the movie and was actually captured on film. Supposedly, the camera men didn't notice the ghost during the actual filming. Just recently the ghost was spotted in the background during one of the scenes, and now everyone's running to the video store to see it for themselves. Of course I was one of those people who had to go rent the movie a second time since I love a little scare and mystery in my life. And I was amazed at what I found.

There is a scene in the movie where Ted Danza is with his mother. When the two of them walk over to the baby's bassinet, they pass by some large windows. The last window they pass before reaching the bassinet has something in it which seems to be a shotgun. It looks like the gun is just leaning against the window sill. This is hard to spot unless you can pause your VCR as they pass the window. It is there though. Once the two charac-

Dolls to Death... Still Uncut

by David Muggleston
Box #1123

Wargasm / Wrecking Crew/Biohazard/Over and Out Deringer's, Brockton, MA 10-12-90

Wargasm always rules, even though they were cut short by Deringer's lame management. They played the usual litter of tracks from "Why Play Around," as well as "Blood Flood," slated to appear on the next Wargasm album, and "Ugly is to the Bone," which appears on their hard-to-get demo.

Wrecking Crew, one down on the roster, opened with "Why Must They" and then proceeded to absolutely rage through a set which included all of their recent "Demo 90," along with killer renditions of "Guts and Glory," "Judgement" and "Confusion." Closing with the new (deleted from "Demo 90") "Passing Time," Wrecking Crew actually did an encore of "Old Enough (to Kill)," one of the best tracks from "Balance of Terror." A great set.

Biohazard, up from Brooklyn and promoting their new album "Biohazard," which you all (of course) must have bought by now, somehow ended up third on the marquee for this show. Probably because Wargasm and Wrecking Crew are also class acts and are more established in the Boston area. Nevertheless, Biohazard elicited the wildest crowd response this night, with their absolutely devastating sound and extremely vibrant personalities! Their opening intro burst into "Hold My Own," during which vocalist

Evan's uttering of "move it" caused the "pit" to go into a frenzy. Next came "Victory," followed by most of the other songs from "Biohazard," including the slated-for-a-video "Retribution" and the killer "Wrong Side of the Tracks," complete with Evan's Brooklyn-accented rap. Biohazard closed what will go down as a successful show at a lame club with "Survival of the Fittest," and surely left an indelible impression on the fine young citizens of Brockton!

The poor timing and repeated soundman-aimed complaints of openers Over and Out almost overshadowed their excellent music. Pull it together, guys.

Puritan love is Chaos

by Judith Dickerman Nelson

"A Girl's Guide to Chaos" opened at Nick's, a cabaret room next to Nick's Comedy Stop in Boston, and will run through Sunday, November 25th. The play was written by Cynthia Heimel and is touted as "an uproariously comic look at the perils of love, sex, and everyone's worst nightmare—DATING!" There is a little bit about dating and less about love; this play's focus is sex.

Cynthia, played by Sally Monroe, is lucky enough to be getting sex from her live-in boyfriend, a man who they call the "Kiwi"; Cleo, played by Josette Di Carlo, is hoping to get it from Cynthia's ex-boyfriend; and Rita, played by Donna Manley, is hoping to get some sex from someone—anyone. All three women are worried that they might be neurotic, and by the end of the play I was sure they were.

The plot of the play is basically this: how to find sex, how to find companionship, and how to find sex. The libidos of these women are in overdrive and they spend a large (oops) amount of time talking about a man's size; I do not mean height. They have a lot to say about men and two of their favorite sayings were: "If you can't fry it or f*ck it, forget it," and "A man who can't kiss can't f*ck." So much for tact.

"Chaos" is not a play you would want to take your mother to, unless you enjoy being embarrassed. But the play does have its moments and they are especially funny. There is a scene in the second half of the play where the three girls are drunk and discuss the joys of, how shall I say it, oral sex. They talk about the many ways to convince your man that, yes, it is better to give than to receive.

The theater itself is tiny and some of the acting occurs at a bar stool next to the stage. There are very few props and the success of the play rests solely on the shoulders of the actresses and the actor. Sally Monroe and Donna Manley put in respectable performances as Cynthia and Rita, respectively, but it is Josette Di Carlo who truly shines. Di Carlo has a distinctive throaty voice and a wonderful sense of timing. Audrey Abrams does not impress in her role as Lurene, a waitress at a local bar where the girls hang out. Skip Malone is the only man in the play and he does a good job in his role as Jake, Cynthia's ex-boyfriend. At other times Malone takes on the roles of the different men the girls meet on the street, and at the bar.

"Chaos" addresses the issues of how to find sex and how to stop feelings of loneliness in a large city. The play is humorous, if base at times, yet there is an underlying glimmer of people trying to reach out to others. It is quirky, funny, and sad that sometimes. As the girls from "Chaos" so truthfully point out, our reaching out consists of the daily reading of someone else's horoscope. Ah, to love.

Pilobolus is gone

by E. Sawyer and
The Demigod

Since its remarkable emergence from a college dance class in 1971, Pilobolus has been actively extending the limits of human motion to forge a new vision of modern dance. Twenty years of experimentation in collaborative choreography have earned the company international acclaim for its highly original style of daring physicality, ebullient wit, and richly evocative imagery.

With the diverse backgrounds of its choreographers and its unique collaborative method, Pilobolus has produced a repertory which displays a wide range of choreographic and theatrical invention. "Walkyndon" (1971), the earliest offering of any on their programs, represents the era when Pilobolus was a company of four classmates turned professional dancers, who created and performed their own work and managed their own company as well. In "Ocellus" (1972), we see the sculptural use of the body, often in never-before-attempted multiple-body structures which quickly became a company trademark.

The biological imagery evoked by its titles (Ciona is an acrobatic marine invertebrate) is also representative of early company work. In fact, with characteristic playfulness, the company takes its own name from a genus of photographic fungi.

Pilobolus's continued innovation is seen in the dramatic "Untitled" (1976) where they moved into psychologically deeper waters and in the tribal "Day Two" (1980). In the company's more recent creations, the mysterious narrative of "Land's Edge" (1986), the central imagery of "Dubut C" (1988), and the lyrical athleticism of "The Particle Zoo" (1990), we see in full flower the earliest seeds of Pilobolus's collective vision.

Pilobolus lives and works in a small rural town in northwestern Connecticut, though it tours extensively worldwide. The company's first appearance abroad, at the Edinburgh Festival in 1973, brought them the Scotsman's award for Best Fringe Event. They received the Berlin Critic's Prize in 1975, and in 1979 the U. S. State Dept. sponsored a Pilobolus tour that included India, Afghanistan, and Sri Lanka.

Pilobolus has been the recipient of numerous commissions from the American Dance Fes-ters reach the bassinet, they socialize and the mother picks up the baby. They then all start walking back and pass the window again, except this time there isn't a gun in the window but a little boy! This is pretty noticeable once you spot the boy. He is partially concealed in the drapes, but you can see he is watching the cast.

I saw this and "freaked out." I couldn't believe I was actually looking right at a ghost. Many still don't believe what they see with their own eyes. The skeptics and non-believers say it was either a sick joke or something the producers dreamed up to make more people rent the video. If you look close enough at the boy, he almost seems two-dimensional. People think he was a cardboard figure placed there while the camera was filming passed the window. I personally do not know the truth, but thought you might want to check it out for yourselves.

The mother of the dead boy is very unhappy about the entire incident, and is suing the company who made the movie. I think it is a sick joke if it is one, but then again it may be real. If anyone has heard any other factual details about this, please let me know. (If you do have anything else to add to this story please submit a little note to Rita or Sandi in Arts and Entertainment in Fox 426 letting us know.)

tival and is a veteran of many New York seasons including two on Broadway. Its first Broadway run was produced by Pierre Cardin. The company has also played to full houses from London's Sadler's Wells Theater and Rome's Teatro Olimpico to Copenhagen's Trivoli Theater and New York's Joyce Theater. In addition, Pilobolus's works are represented in the repertoires of major dance companies.

Pilobolus has also appeared on television in a variety of programs. They have been featured on PBS's "Dance In America" and "Great Performances" series. They have been seen late at night on the Tonight Show and early in the morning on Sesame Street. Pilobolus has completed features for the French, Danish, Canadian, Bangladeshi, and German national network. The company has also performed in television commercials and has participated in special multimedia projects for Boehringer-Ingelheim and IBM.

For two decades Pilobolus has grown, expanding and refining its original choreographic method to produce an aesthetic vision which it offers to an audience of unequal diversity. While it has become a powerful and stable force in the world of modern dance, Pilobolus remains as protean and surprising as ever.

Computer Chronicles

by Jay Paradis

Spinnaker has two programs that no college student should do without. The first of these two programs is called Better Working Eight in One. This program contains eight powerful integrated programs. The Desktop Organizer tracks your appointments, organizes your to-do list, and the address book keeps all your important names, addresses, and phone numbers. The Outliner provides you with a structure for numbers. The Outliner provides you with a structure for organizing major and minor points into a coherent writing plan before you actually begin. The Word Processor provides full editing and formatting functions, which include word count and centering. It also provides automatic page numbering and automatic table of contents. The spelling corrector captures 99% of spelling and typing errors and suggests correct spelling for over 100,000 words. The Spreadsheet makes financial analysis a breeze with thirty mathematical, statistical, and financial functions. It is Lotus 1-2-3 file compatible. The graphics program presents numerical analysis with bar charts, hatched bar charts, point and line graphs, pie charts, and area graphs. The communications program takes full advantage of Hayes compatible modems, including auto dialing, a full or split screen option, and a baud rate of 300-1200bps.

Each of these eight programs are very easy to learn and use. The drop down menus make it easy to learn commands. Eight in One is easily the best integrated software package on the market. It has Microsoft Works and PFS First Choice beaten hands down. All this is amazingly priced under $40.

The second of these programs is called The Better Working Resume Maker. Resume does everything you need to make a professional looking resume. No student wants to put in four or five years of hard work and then not get a job because someone else's resume looks nicer. This program will help you present an image that will make potential employers drool.

These two programs are two of the best programs on the market for their applications. I hope Spinnaker keeps producing more software of this calibre.

Marching Band Notes

Last weekend the University of Lowell Marching Chiefs guest-performed in Wells Maine, entertaining the crowd and the other competing bands as well. As previously noted, the Band performs throughout New England, which of course includes performances at all Band Finals Competitions-EMBA, NESBA, and MICA. This year we will return to Maine to exhibit at their State Finals. Performances in Maine are always a lot of fun because the people are so very supportive and appreciative of the work that goes into a single show. It's interesting, certainly unique, to be on the receiving end of their glove-muffled applause, but they make up for it by cheering louder than any other group we've played for so far.

This weekend the Band will be appearing at the football game on Saturday, the 27th of October, which has been rescheduled for 7:00 p.m. Also the Band will be participating in the Woburn Halloween parade which takes place on Sunday morning in Woburn, as well as exhibiting in the MICA Finals later on that same afternoon. The MICA Finals will be held at Boston University's Nickerson Field.

Feature Section: The Bass Drum line of Chris, Kris, Bruce and Jim measures 24', the "World's Tallest Bass Drum Line! They add much to the band while also managing to keep the drill instructors on their toes at all times, play jokes on each other, create interpretive drill formations, sing and "fly". Truly one of two sections only Paul Lusardi could understand.

The show will be finished for this week's football game, the first complete performance of the season. Up until this game you have only seen parts of the show. All the pieces are now in place, so come take a look!

Donations and Hunger-Homeless Week: What is Oxfam?

Where will the money go? How will it be used? Who will it benefit? Often we refrain from donating money because we are nuclear concerning the utilization of our offerings. As Hunger-Homeless Week approaches (Nov. 11-18), you will be seeing more and more propaganda around the campus and community asking for your participation and support.

In particular will be a group called Oxfam America. Oxfam America is a non-profit international organization that channels donations from private citizens and businesses into various utilizations. Part of the money is used in the U.S. to promote education and awareness concerning poverty. Some is also retained by the fundraising community such as Lowell for use in the immediate area.

Occasionally, when disaster strikes, some money is sent as emergency aid to buy food and medical supplies.

The bulk of the monies distributed by Oxfam is used to fund self-help projects overseas, about two-thirds of the money is used in this fashion. In these projects, Oxfam representatives familiar with a region's difficulties work with project partners from that region. These partners are typically farmer's union leaders, members of women's associations, or village councils. Before money is allocated, the proposed project must meet several criteria. Generally it is a small-scale project by a local group that will maximize the value of funds and has large potential for growth. Obviously, the project must also involve a low income group and meet an important need. Particular attention is paid to women, who are often particularly disadvantaged. In addition, the project should build self-reliance, strengthen the community's capacity for organization and change, promote institution building and harmony, and finally, set an example.

We private citizens are Oxfam's only income, government aid is neither sought or accepted. The little bit you may give could make you a benefactor of a high school in Namibia, or a supporter of female leadership in Ecuador, or an unknown friend to a down on his luck Lowell native who needs help getting back on his feet.

A Vision Of Leadership.

Over twenty years ago, ARCO Chemical Company envisioned themselves as a world technology and market leader. Today, we are one of the world's leading manufacturers and marketers of propylene oxide, tertiary butyl alcohol, styrene monomer and related intermediate and specialty chemicals used in a broad spectrum of products.

Turning vision into reality doesn't happen all by itself. It requires a plan of action, sufficient financial resources to pursue global opportunities, and most importantly, the brightest and best people preparing to enter the workforce as tomorrow's leaders.

ARCO Chemical representatives will be on campus Wednesday, November 7, 1990, for a presentation in Ball-210 at 7:30AM. We'd like to talk with those who will help us shape our future:

Chemists - (PhD)

Interviews will be held the same day.

See your Placement Counselor today to find out how you can envision yourself as a leader in the Chemical Industry. We are an Equal Opportunity Employer.

Field Hockey Plays Ranked Team Tough

By Eric Pastore

ULowell Field Hockey sustained a tough 4-2 defeat at the hands of WPI last week. Senior captain Sara Nicholisi did her bit for the cause, ringing up her first 2 goals of the season. The Chiefs played tough against a difficult opponent, which should be encouraging. "We came out real well in the first half," said head coach Beverly Agrella. "It just seems that we came out a little flat in the second half." Commenting on WPI, Agrella noted, "They are ranked #1 in the Northeast, but I still felt they could be beaten." Agrella also pointed out that Worcester's artificial surface, which the Chiefs aren't used to, may have hurt her team. Besides the offensive prowess of Nicholisi, Freshman Janine Davey played an excellent game for the Chiefs.

The team now stands with a 4-11-1 record for the season, already bettering last years mark. With three games remaining, against Salem State, C.W. Post, and Siena respectively, coach Agrella sees the chance for even more wins. "We can beat our next three opponents. If we play like we can, there is no reason we shouldn't end the season with seven wins," said Agrella.

"We're already better than last years three wins, which is great. We've come a long way." The Chiefs certainly have improved, and with young talent abounding, could become one of the more refreshing stories in ULowell Athletics. Agrella has set a solid foundation, and looks to be building a solid house upon it.

One final note. Unbeknownst to many people, is the fact that sophomore goaltender Ruth Benoit, is on the verge of becoming a ULowell field hockey legend. After compiling 17 saves against Worcester, she now has 265 for the season, which is six short of the school record. In her first two sessions, Benoit already has ULowell's all-time mark of 512 saves, and is now on the verge of another milestone.

Sports Spotlight Liam Scully

by Chris Mertz

Veteran small forward Liam Scully is an integral part of the 1990 ULowell Basketball team. In his two years as a starter for the Chiefs, Liam has acquired a very impressive record both on and off the court. Last year, Scully averaged 13 points and 4 rebounds per game. Liam started his sophomore season off with a bang against the powerful Merrimack Warriors, leading the team with 25 points and five rebounds. Scully is an aggressive offensive player who is fearless going to the glass. He has improved his defensive game tremendously since his freshman year and possesses a great feel for the game.

Besides his "on the court" performance, Liam has established an impressive academic career as well. A Dean's List student and Political Science major, Scully's soph. GPA was a 3.2. Unfortunately, Liam has been plagued by a reoccurring knee injury. This injury resulted in Liam's absence from 6 games last year and the entire pre-season in his freshman year. This summer, Liam suffered his third injury to the knee but has started practicing with the team. He is confident that his knee will stay strong. When asked about this year's team, Scully humbly replied, "With the addition of Steve Lane and 'Big Wil' Collins, we look better than I've ever seen at this point in the season. I'm hoping for a strong season and better away performances." This season, with a healthy Liam, Lowell should have a talented team and a good shot at the NECC Championship.

Married Student Housing

The University has a limited number of efficiency, ($350/month, utilities included) one bedroom ($440/month, no utilities) and two bedroom apartments ($490/month, no utilities) available, some for immediate occupancy.

These apartment buildings are located approximately a mile from the North Campus, on East Meadow Lane in Lowell.

To be eligible, a person must be enrolled at the University as a full time graduate (9 credits) or undergraduate (12 credits) student.

Interested individuals can inquire at the Office of University Life, Cumnock Hall, the North Campus.

Ask the Hammer

Yo Hammer!

I was reading in the New England Medical Journal that a brand new study says that smoking marijuana helps in curing some diseases. So, Hammer, is it okay if I smoke some pot in my room to help me feel better? Hip E.

Hipster,

Are you baked? There is no room in the residence halls for any form of illegal drugs. Section 2.5 of the Student Conduct Code clearly states "No student shall use, grow, or possess any drugs considered illegal or drug paraphernalia on the University campus." Hip, if you are caught with any drugs, then for your first offense you will get a sanction of probation. For a second offense, you will get a suspension and a referral to the Counseling Center, and for a third offense you will be expelled from housing. And by the way, even the smell of pot in your room is enough to get you in trouble. Hammer

Yo Hammer!

I am in a major post-summer bummer over the Red Sox. They are such a let down. So, me and my roommate were in the hallway re-enacting the series against the A's. Then out of the clear blue some R.A. comes around the corner and says that we have to stop playing. Hammer, How come? A Texas Leaguer Howdy Tex,

Did you lose the ball in the sun? You cannot play sports in the hall. Yeah, I know the Sox' choking was a tough one to swallow, but this doesn't mean you can throw the water jugs into the hall. So it's time to hang up the gloves till next spring cuz you can't play ball in the hall. Hammer

Fox Hall Council News

On October 17, FHC met for the third time. Ideas are starting to progress into activities and all the members are enthusiastic about the upcoming year.

First on the agenda is the all new and improved "Gotcha".

The first game just played last week was practice to let everyone unfamiliar with the game get to see how it works. "Gotcha" is the game where everyday normal people turn into sneaky killers. The object of the game is to kill the person you have before getting killed yourself. You keep killing people until you yourself are killed because once you are dead, you are out!! Still need more incentive to sign up and play? The winner of the "Gotcha" game will receive $50.00 worth of points! The all new "Gotcha" will be sweeping the building Nov 1-15. Sign ups will take place Oct. 17-24 so run to your wing rep and sign your name. . . don't turn your back for a second. . .

Jail day is another project FHC is sponsoring. On Oct. 22 people through the building will be getting arrested for numerous reasons. For $1.00 you can put out a warrant for someone's arrest: your RA, your ex-boyfriend/girlfriend, or just someone you want to harass. Warrants are available in the front of Fox Hall cafe during dinner, or you can purchase them from your wing reps. It will be a night filled with fun so get involved.

Tuck-ins are here once again!! What are they you ask? Well tuck-ins are a funny way to send someone a bedtime story. You will be able to sign up people for tuck-ins Monday Nov. 5 & Tuesday Nov. 6. The cost is only $1.00 and you will be able to buy them outside the Fox cafe. Tuck-ins will take place Wednesday Nov. 7, and you also get to choose from two types of literature: "Nice", and "Hot & Spicy over 18". So make your choice and get ready.

Getting into the spirit of the holidays, on October 30, there will be a pumpkin carving contest. Each floor will receive a pumpkin to carve out. The judges, chosen from FHC, will judge on Oct. 31, Halloween. The winning floor will receive a great prize not yet revealed to the public. God Luck!!

A few dates to remember in the future: On December 6, there will be an FHC semi-formal. This will be held at the Dracut Heritage. Go with a date, or with a group of friends, but just go!! There will be a buffet dinner and a night filled with dancing. There is going to be a lot of fun for everyone who goes so start making plans.

Stay tuned every week to see new and exciting activities put on by FHC.

Any student who has failed to submit the required proof of immunization to the Student Health Service will have a 'flag' placed on his/her file and will be unable to register for Spring classes. If you have any question about the status of your file, check with the Health Service. Public Health law requires that proof of up-to-date immunization to be filed or that the student be suspended from classes.

Happy Halloween Giveaways

Help the House of Hope

Trick or treat? Which would you like to get for Halloween? The Commuter Association will be giving out the treats to everyone on October 31 on both campuses.

A keen eye is all you'll need. The Commuter

Association will be placing miniature pumpkins around campus. If you see one of the pumpkins with a funny face on it, you can redeem it at one of the Commuter Association tables FOR A HALLOWEEN TREAT. There will be tables outside the north and south Student Information Centers, located next to the student mail-rooms.

Additional pumpkins will also be on sale at these tables. Any of the profits from the sale of the pumpkins will go to the House of Hope to help those in need.

If your unlucky and don't find a pumpkin, you can come by either of the tables on north or south and enjoy punch and halloween treats on us anyway. Special prizes will be given to those who find the pumpkins.

You can help the House of Hope in the mean time. In conjunction with Halloween activities on campus, the Commuter Association and ARA Food Service will be sponsoring a Halloween Party, Halloween night, for the kids at the House of Hope. You can be a part of this by signing up to help out that night when you stop by one of the Commuter Association tables.

Beyond Good Guys & Bad Guys:

Resolving Conflict Over Environmental Risk

Presenter: Dr. Julia Brody

Date: Thursday, November 1

Time: 5:30 p.m.

Place: 111 Mahoney Hall, University of Lowell

Intense community conflict over environmental risk is illustrated in the experience of a Needham public school where toxics improperly disposed at a nearby industrial site contaminated groundwater, exposing students and staff to health risks. The role of a mediator in resolving this conflict will be discussed from a community psychology perspective of the importance of resources, power, and value. Specific skills in statistics, research design, ecological analysis of communities, and "listening" will be addressed.

Dr. Julia Brody is a consultant to the Risk Analysis Group at Tellus Institute for Resource and Environmental Strategies in Boston. Her work has focused on community impacts of environmental risk and public perceptions of risk. She previously served as Deputy Commissioner for Policy Development and Communications at the Massachusetts Department of Environmental Management and as Director of Special Programs for Texas Agricultural Commissioner, Jim Hightower. She is principal investigator for the first social research conducted under the U.S. Nuclear Waste Policy Act. Dr. Brody earned her Ph.D. in community psychology at the University of Texas at Austin and her B.A. from Harvard.

MOVING UP HAS A WHOLE DIFFERENT MEANING FOR AIR FORCE ROTC CADETS.

Virtually all college students plan to move up in their career. But Air Force ROTC cadets can begin the training toward a career that goes higher and faster. In fact, if you'd like to begin a life in the sky, your best first step is Air Force ROTC.

You'll learn the confidence you'll need whether you're going to plot a course as a navigator or take the controls as a pilot. FAA-approved flight lessons will launch you for the first time. And as your college career develops, so do the skills you'll need as an Air Force officer.

Begin early in college, and you'll be eligible for scholarships that can pay expenses and provide you $100 each academic month, tax-free. After graduation, you'll be ready to take the challenge of an intensive, rigorous training program.

Move up with Air Force ROTC now, and you can move up with the Air Force as an officer. Contact your campus Air Force representative:

Alcohol Awareness

Patricia Janice Editor-in-Chief

For those of you who hadn't noticed, we are at the end of Alcohol Awareness Week. ULowell had planned several events to inform people of the effects of Alcohol. Granted, most of us know what the effects of alcohol are, but some of us refuse to admit it at times. Especially if you're at a party and there is always at least one person who thinks that they are fit to drive home, and it is blatantly obvious that they won't even make it to their car, let alone drive. The scary thought is that people do drive around like that. You might be glad that you stopped drinking hours ago in order to be able to drive home, but you might run into someone who wasn't as smart. So, one can never know.

However, ULowell addressed the issue by offering various programs and demonstrations to show us the effects of alcohol in a more controlled atmosphere. Lectures and meetings were held, as well as a demonstration on Wednesday, October 24, called "The Effects of Alcohol." This demonstration, I think, was the most interesting and informative. Six students (21 and over, of course) volunteered to perform various tasks and exercises to demonstrate the effects of alcohol on different individuals. The subjects were fed a steady stream of alcoholic beverages, and then they were asked to perform some minor tasks to prove that their skill levels were adversely affected. Every half hour they were to sign their name to be projected on an overhead so all could see the clarity of the signature gradually deteriorating. Also, they had to maneuver a remote control car around a small course while staying within the lines and not hitting anything. Well, lets just say that the effects were quite obvious, and these people would be very dangerous on the road.

Aside from the humor of the situation (getting blitzed in school), I certainly hope that the people watching and participating in this event walked away a little wiser.

"Where's Your Brain" 101

What a great place. I mean, when you think about it, ULowell isn't that bad. We've got some extremely dedicated teachers who are in many ways more politically active than the students. We've got a bunch of staff members and campus cops who really talk to the students and seem to have a genuine desire to make sure things are done right.

Now don't get me wrong, there are some things about this school that ruffle my feathers and send other students fleeing back to the bigger schools in Boston and Amherst.

We've got a lot of courses here. Sure we had more when the money was better, but we've got general courses in sciences, philosophy, art, math, and all the big ones that you better have when you call yourself a university. We've also got courses that focus on women's studies, native american studies, and basic human values. But this school needs a class for undergraduates called "Where's your Brain 101."

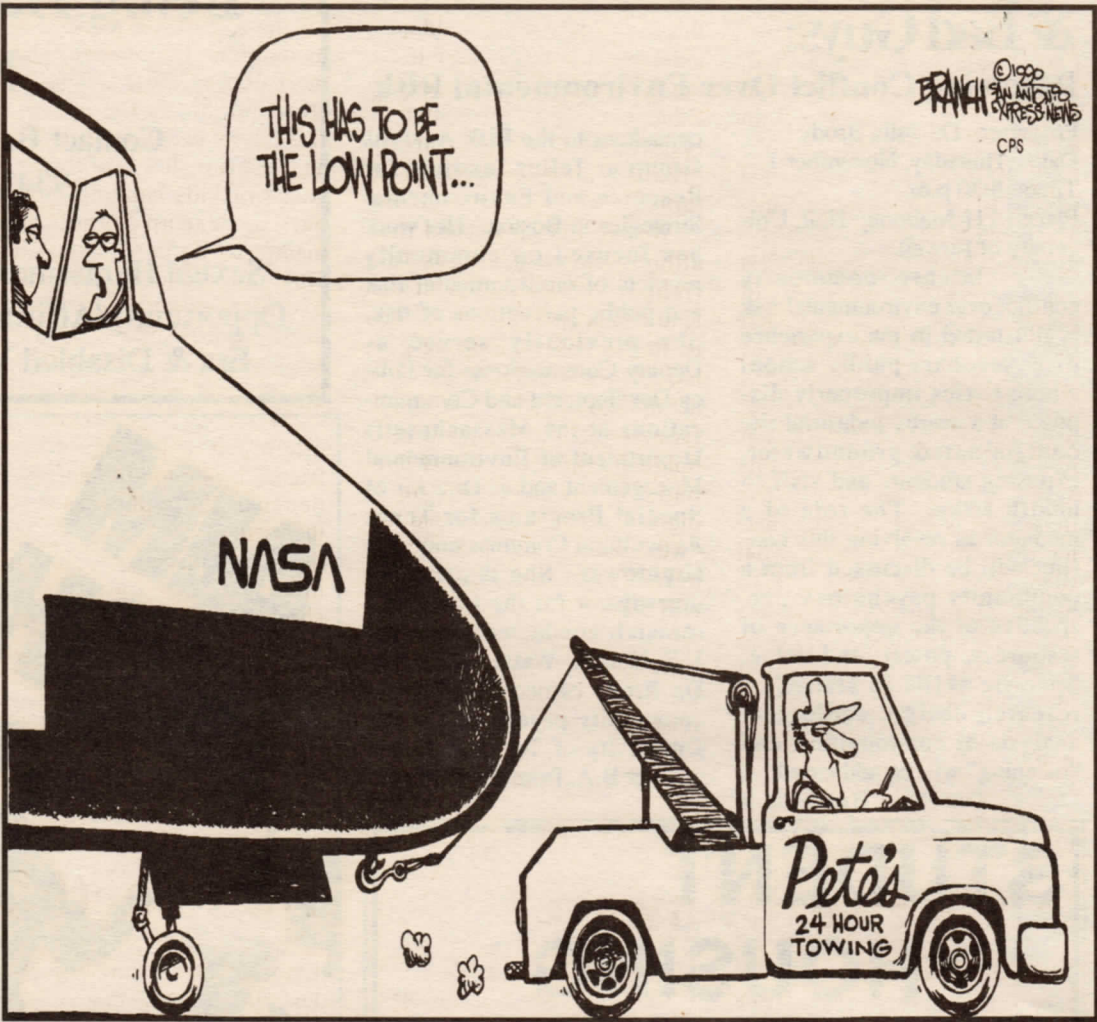

We teach how to add and subtract, how to appreciate music, and even how to care for another person, but we really need courses on common sense.

I was listening to Chris Collins' show on WJUL two week's ago when Dean King met with the Pawtucketville Neighborhood group and they were describing some of the horror stories that have been going around.

One resident was trying to quiet down some loud students who lived above her and they urinated on her. Where's your brain?

Look ladies and gentlemen, evolution has set in. We no longer have the need to drag our knuckles on the ground when we walk. Stop being morons. Sure you can have fun, but keep it in control.

That's only one example. Last week I turned on Standish Street looking for a place to park and some clown had parked in the middle of the road. That's a one-way street and vitally important because

Letters to the Editor:

We need Alumni in the Legislature

Dear Students,

There has been a lot of talk about CLT throughout the state lately, but an issue that is more important to the university is who is going to represent our school's best interest in the legislature in the 90's. For the past 8 years, the state representative from the city of Lowell (whose district includes every inch of our university) has been Susan Rourke.

We have seen higher education cut for three consecutive years. The University's budget has gone from $56 million to $43 million dollars. In addition to budget cuts, Representative

Rourke initiated an amendment to do away with the Board of Regents, who had supported the university since their creation.

It is my belief that a representative should represent all the people in the district, not just the one who vote. We all know Representative Rourke's attitude towards the school in the past. From her well-known quotes to her consistent neglect to the needs of the university.

From my past experience and research, it has been proven true that public universities are better when there are alumni members in the Legislature.

This year, we have an opportunity as a student body to elect an alumni for our new representative, Mary Burns. Since Mary graduated from the University of Lowell in 1984, she has spent endless hours contributing to the school in her participation as a volunteer member of the Alumni Board. She has proven herself worthy of our votes by not only her commitment to our university, but also to hers.

I suggest that we all stand behind Mary Burns and elect her as our new representative on November 6th.

of the deliveries that are made to the school. An ambulance would have trouble getting to the health building while some jack-ass in a jeep checks his phone calls. Where's your brain?

Sure a lot of the applicants to "Where's Your Brain 101" would be undergraduates, but some of them could also be faculty and administrators. I've been around campus for a long time and I've seen the way some of the faculty and staff treat students. They're the type that don't see us as individuals. They're the type that get so caught up in their own little victories that they forget why they are here. Some friends of mine had told me stories of some teachers who would give you a poorer grade if you did not help them work on their research tasks. Where's your brain?

Sure we're students here and you've seen hundreds of us go by every four or five years, but don't you dare treat us like a number when our tuition is going up and up. You are an employee. A very special employee, albeit, but an employee. Treat the students right or go work somewhere else.

There's a last group of people who should enroll in this new program. Anyone who is a bigot, sexist, or homophobe. Too many times have I heard people say that gooks were screwing up the grading curve or that all queers should be rounded up and shot. When are we going to start treating everyone fairly? Where's your brain?

By promoting racism and sexism you are telling that world that you think it is okay to step on someone else. It's all well and good until you are the one who gets beat up in a bar because you called the wrong guy 'nigger'. Wise up.

We should be finding ways to welcome foreign students to our school and our culture. We should be looking for ways for everyone to enjoy each others' traditions. Give everyone a chance. Use your brain.

-Chuck Mahaleris

What is Homophobia

In last week's Connector, Father Garrity felt compelled, apparently in honor of National Coming Out Day, to write an editorial about homophobia, an editorial which, I confess, disturbed me. The content didn't disturb me, for at first glance, it was somewhat free of content, but by the things it left unsaid.

Father Garrity mentions several times, "the moral issues associated with homosexuality." Nowhere, however, does he actually attempt to address those issues, nor, for that matter, does he even mention what they might be. It is fair to assume that most of his readers are already familiar with traditional Christian viewpoints of homosex, based upon the views of Saul of Tarsus (St. Paul): that homosexuality is incontrovertibly a sin. The Roman Catholic Church has gone so far as to claim AIDS is retribution for this sin (this writer would consider it crass to wonder if we are to assume that countries like Ethiopia or Haiti are completely gay, or if lesbians aren't _really_ homosexuals, or so forth...)

We are then informed that, although homophobia is "not right or wrong", that "it can lead to immoral activity;" that is, that fearing and hating gays is all right, as long as you don't act upon it (a bit of a step away from Catholic doctrine that holding a sin in the heart is as bad as commission...but I digress...). We are also told that "we can agree about homophobia and still disagree about homosexuality;" that is to say, we can not hate them, but still not like them very much (The confused reader is asked to consider the sentence "I got nothing against blacks, but would you let one marry your daughter?")

But, for Father Garrity, and for the rest of my readers with incomplete dictionaries, allow me to complete a definition. Homophobia is the hate and fear felt by people towards gays and lesbians. It's manifested in gangs of kids hanging around bars to beat up faggots. It's manifested in curse words like "fag" and "queer", that every five-year-old knows are deadly insults, even if they don't know what sex is yet. It's manifested in not being able to hold your lover's hand because someone might see. It's manifested in friends trying to kill themselves because their parents threw them out of the house for being a queer. It's manifested in statistics that show that half of all teenage suicides are gays and lesbians (and we'll never now how many auto accidents were really accidental). Homophobia is what happens when people are taught how to hate instead of how to love.

-Erich Rickheit

Are we really aware?

If you were to walk up to most any member of any college campus and accuse them of cultural ignorance, they would most likely deny it. Why? The reason is...pride. No one wants anyone else to think that he or she is not aware enough about the world around them, especially at a college campus.

Yet, the truth remains. Most people are not culturally informed, and the Culture Fest on October 25, 1990 from 4-8 p.m. in Cumnock Hall is the key to that information most of us lack. Now more than ever people are asked to deal with people and cultures that are completely distant to their normal, everyday lifestyles. Business relations hurt if countries don't understand what each other is satisfied with, and also, what they each may be searching for. Yet, above all, we are denying ourselves the pleasure of truly understanding our complex world if we do not break down the special parts that compose it. What a joyful feeling to know that you walked away from an event knowing that you now can better relate to your neighbor, whomever he or she may be.

So open your eyes to the world by taking the step to breaking down the cultural barrier that separates you from your neighbor. Go to Culture Fest, and experience a world of diversity that will surprise you, amuse you and inform you, but above all, will satisfy you. Be aware! Go to Culture Fest! If you don't, whom will you have to blame?

-Richard Peck

The everyday hassle

Did you ever notice what a chore it is to get things done here at the University of Lowell? After my four year academic career here at this University I have learned a few things. I've learned that the constant hassling by the supporting staff of the school can take its toll. My spirit is soured. Does my tuition not pay the salaries of the people who work at the University? It must be an unspoken occupational prerequisite to be rude and unaccommodating when employed by the University of Lowell. Although I suspect that the same holds true at other Universities. It's an automatic thing, if you are not a student yourself, then you have no respect or patience for a student. Would there be a University of Lowell if there were not students?? NO!!

Students are prejudged before they have a chance to open their mouths. The staff of the University acts as if they are doing us the "biggest favor" to perform their duties. Have you ever seen the sign posted in plain view in the Registrar's office? It reads "A lack of planning on your part does not constitute an emergency on my part." Are these people miserable in their jobs or what?

There seems to be a bitterness behind the eyes of every office worker, (except the students that work there too), in every last corner of the University. Why are these people still working here if they are so put out by their allotted duties? Does the staff have the right to be rude to the student that is merely following standard procedure, after all isn't it the staff that sets "standard procedure"?

I am shocked if ever I stumble upon the pleasantries of someone who is having a good day, and is happy to be helpful. I certainly don't think that its too much to ask for the staff to treat the students as human beings, we pay money to be at this University, thus we pay the staff to facilitate our needs...Don't we???

-Lori McGovern

Do something

Ever since the flurry of Earth Day '90, it seems that everyone is talking about the environment. Television lineups are chock full of documentaries and new programs about the state of wave of environmental bumper stickers and T-shirts has swept the country, gripping our nations people with the same insistence and intensity as the American Motto: "I've fallen, and I can't get up!"

So now Mother Earth is getting some of the publicity she has been deserving for a long time. But it is apparent to me, at least, that publicity and visibility are in and of themselves ineffective and almost somewhat of a waste. I mean, consider what goes on now. People talk and companies fanfare and T.V. stations spend money broadcasting and citizens of the planet apply stickers and don T-shirts and wear buttons; but what changes do these measures effect? Too often the answer emerges, "Not many, if any."

When I was watching the T.V. on Earth Day and noticed the elaborate, high budget, sometimes LONG commercials broadcast in between the various specials, I couldn't help pondering the millions and millions of dollars that companies spent on these ad spots. I thought to myself that it would have been much more comforting to hear a series of five or ten second announcements that went something like, "The _____ Company, Inc. wants viewers to know that instead of buying expensive air time, it has donated in excess of _____ dollars to the cause of saving our planet." Don't get me wrong, these ads we saw that day and night were a lot better than what usually gets pumped through the air and into our brains, and wearing shirts and buttons IS a good thing. What remains in my conscience and in my heart, though, is that we need, as a people, to stop just talking the talk and to start walking the walk. Words, by themselves, are shallow. We need action, and we need it now.

One of the simplest ways to Do Something is to recycle. Along these lines, we are the State of Massachusetts recycles a feeble 7%. This is embarrassing. Although switching to recycling requires motivation and some initial expense, the final costs, as compared to the costs of incinerators and landfills is astounding. Only one fifth to one half the total expense! Not to mention overflowing landfills are expected to eventually leak and pollute groundwater, or that one ton of garbage burned in an incinerator produces 500 pounds of hazardous ash and an average of 5000 different chemical compounds; the financial savings themselves should be reason enough to begin recycling. Everything.

Here at ULowell, we are starting with cans. Now, other groups on campus have begun small initiatives to recycle soda and beer cans, but this is going to be different. By all means, continue to support other, smaller groups in what can amount to a healthy little fundraising; but you will, no doubt, begin to see MASSPIRG bins and signs popping up wherever we can put them. We start with cans, we start with South Campus, and we start infiltrating the residence halls, beginning with Concordia. It will happen. It IS happening.

Do your Part. Recycle. Better yet, contact MASSPIRG at SIC South, or write me at box 6104. It doesn't really matter which you elect to do, but on behalf of MASSPIRG and my great-grandchildren I bet of you Do Something.

-Carey Day

Obtaining a college education is hard enough in these economic times. That's why Susan Rourke, as a member of the Committee on Education has been responsible for:

1. Developing and funding the Tsongas Industrial Center.
2. Securing Bond approval for the two new dorms.
3. Establishing the Doctoral Program in Education when in fact the Board of Regents opposed it.
4. An eighty-one percent increase in overall funding to the University from the State.
5. Purchase of the West Campus for the College of Education.

ONE MILLION OF THE BEST MINDS IN AMERICA HAVE ALREADY CHOSEN THE BEST RETIREMENT PROGRAM. TIAA-CREF.

TIAA-CREF is building a sound financial future for more than 1,000,000 people in the education and research communities. And over 200,000 retirees are now enjoying the benefits of their TIAA-CREF annuities.

We currently offer you Supplemental Retirement Annuities (SRAs) and are working with sponsors of legislation that would allow the Board or Regents to establish an Optional Retirement Plan (ORP) in Massachusetts. ORP-type plans are currently offered at public institutions of higher education in 41 of the 50 states.

SOLID PERFORMANCE AND TIMELY INNOVATION

Whether you are just starting your career or you are nearing retirement we can help you prepare for the future. Since 1918, we've been dedicated to making sure that people in education and research can count on a comfortable retirement.

We pioneered the portable pension. We invented the variable annuity. In 1988, we created the CREF Money Market Account to give you more flexibility. And in March of this year, we introduced two new accounts, the CREF Bond Market Account and the CREF Social Choice Account, to let you shape and diversify your retirement investments even further.

At TIAA-CREF, we believe that steady incremental growth over the long term is the best way to build retirement income. This investment philosophy has worked well for over seventy years, and has provided retirement income for hundreds of thousands of people like you.

THE KEYS TO RETIREMENT INVESTING

Security, growth, and diversity are the keys to sound retirement investing: security, so the resources are sure to be there when it's time to retire; growth, so you'll have the income you need for the kind of retirement you want; and diversity to help protect you against volatility and to let you benefit from the strengths of several types of investments.

TIAA AND CREF—A SMART COMBINATION

TIAA's traditional annuity provides maximum safety, guaranteeing your principal and a specified interest rate. It also gives you the opportunity for growth through dividends — which we've declared every year for 41 years. In fact, TIAA's net earned rate has beaten the industry average for every one of those years.<sup>1</sup>

With CREF's variable annuity, you can choose from four different investment accounts, all managed by experts who understand the long-term strategies essential to sound retirement planning.

THE FIRST CHOICE IN EDUCATION AND RESEARCH

The TIAA-CREF retirement system is specifically designed for people in education and research. You may move from one institution to another many times in your career, so your annuities move with you to any of over 4,200 institutions with TIAA-CREF retirement plans. You need financial security, so the system provides retirement income you cannot outlive. Plus, the TIAA-CREF system offers:

Performance: The CREF Stock Account outperformed the mutual fund industry averages for the last one-, five-, and ten-year periods. The CREF Money Market Account has shown excellent returns since its inception, outperforming the industry average since May of 1988.<sup>2</sup>

Responsiveness: Our experienced counselors are ready to answer your questions. Call our toll-free numbers for performance figures or information about your personal annuity accumulations.

Strength: Your future is protected by the largest private retirement system in the world. We have done so well, for so many, for so long, that we currently manage over $80 billion in assets.

There is only one word to describe a girl who can undo a guy's belt by her teeth: talent.

Vik pik: I think it's you.

Always a bridesmaid, never a bride!

Ronnie: Again, Happy 21!! We said goodbye but you might not remember because the basketball machine was holding you up. Have you ever been that drunk before in your "entire life?"

Mark Sorry about Friday night. I wish I wasn't first. Please don't make payback vicious. Thanks for the Sex after Sex after Sex, and the best Oral. I'm so demanding. Next Friday I expect the same. Can't wait!! UMass Chick

Scumbuster #1: Wednesday you got the cute one. Friday we both got one. Where were you Saturday morning? Same clothes. No sex I promise. How do you get to Friendly's go straight. Let's get the broccoli soup. Remember let's get sh*t faced...and we sure did. Scumbuster #2

Bums: To all the friends in the world...there's a meeting in the ladies room. What a time, catch ya in the fast lane. BUM

Hondo: I know it has been difficult to put up with me, but I promise to make it one of the best. There will never be a repeat performance like Saturday-that was sickening. I really did miss ya though. Love ya--D

Ho #2: So, have you punched any walls lately? I know this week has been hell, but we both made it through with the help of each other. But, I'm still confused! Thanx for everything! Have you seen Sybil? Love, Ho #1

Homie!! Let's add another chapter about rats. I can think of two to add to the list. A few people are gonna be sorry for what they have put me through, believe me. Let me leave you with this: It's all been fun and games up to now, but payback is gonna be more of a b*tch than I am. And I still don't know if Hondo purrs or not. Love Ho #2

Bimbo from North, How are those rugburns healing? Love ya, Me.

To the twins: The Ho's did not invade your territory. Ho #2 has known Homie and Roomie since her freshman year and Ho#1 is her best friend. Obviously we are part of the picture and you are Not. Either make yourselves known or screw!!!! Love the Ho's

Lanni and MacD: You two are the bestest things. I know I have put you guys through a lot, but I love you guys! Please Lanni, I still want to be friends, sorry about the misunderstanding. And MacD, what can I say--you have always been there for me, through good and bad. I must say the time has come to take the pigs to the slaughter. Cuz

Ho #2 sent up a message while she was home: Even though she is away, the rats may play, but they will NEVER have the final say. Also, she sends her love to Hondo and the other two musketeers.

Ho #1 Well, the sh*t is about to hit the fan. Saturday night was a disaster, wasn't it? As long as everything is okay with Hondo, that's all that matters. I really missed you while I was gone. But, now I am back, so let the games begin!!! Love Ho #2

What ever happened to that hosnatcher--Dr. Jeckyll and Mr. Nohyde? Is he still chasing after Ho #2? Of course not, he knows what is up with her and Hondo! Now what is he gonna do--go after Ho #1

Criminal Justice Honors Society: Our next meeting will be in Coburn 209 at 7:00 pm. All members are welcomed.

Homie: Thank you so much for the rose. I'm glad everything can still be the same. I really did miss hanging out with one of my favorite people. Sorry for being such a b*tch, but everything's starting to clear up. Ho #2 is finally back, so let the games begin. PS I still love you, & I owe you one! Ho #1

Justice and Toadd: So, where do I get a spine?--Ernie

To the girl dancing in the window What do you mean you didn't feel anything????? Ernie and Juice.

Hey Ernie The K-mart blue light special is almost over--better get your spine before they are all sold out!!!! Juice

The only difference between tattooed people and non-tattooed people is that tattooed people don't care if your non-tattooed. Highlander

To the girl standing on the table Saturday night: What do you mean you didn't feel anything?????

Killer-- Where have you been? Next time you are going to be kidnapped, could you give me a little warning so I can find a roommate to replace you? So many wasted opportunities. Ernie

Signs of a good date-- when you date opens the door for you.

Julie: You make a beautiful bride, (a little wobbly, though). See you in divorce Court.

Robin: Rumor has it you're 21 soon. Beware the golden shot glass!!! Hee, hee, hee.

NANA (Yes this means you, Jean). I am glad you and Jim got back together. Hey what's his sign anyway?

Christopher, How can you concentrate in Thermo while looking at a Ujena catalog (or is it the person holding it)? Dr. Draw Figures.

Thirteen days dry!! Does this constitute lameness, soberness, nananess, or hopelessness! You be the judge. However, let's consider the definition of lameness, soberness, nananess, hopelessness... etc... Define 13. Define days. Define dry. Define define.

If you'd like a piece of gum ask the girl with the juicy fruit butt. If you would like to buy a one of a kind Scarlet O'Hara Dress (don't trifle) ask Bowlinda. If you'd like some hairspray ask hairhead with the stuff stuff on her head (Is she from Medford--not Malden and how high can hair actually get?) ask you-know-hairstyled-who. If you'd like to rid of unwanted party guests contact Cheryl the Bouncer. Reasonable rates (usually beer!)

Tom W. Don't forget: I have a picture of you!! P.S. Congrats

Where's Spring Break this year? I hope it's some place with a Gucci outlet.

13 Days and I haven't received my umbrella. JAC help me out here please. Try to remember not forget it next time you visit. Thanx

To T.A.R. Pertaining to Saturday Night. Thank you for evaporating me before I could drown in misery!!!

Do you know a fire Sign?? Well if you do, you probably been burnt, or at least smoked. Ask yourself "Is it really worth it??"

Ho#1: You've been awfully quiet this week. Have you done something we should know about? Where have you been spending your nights? Obviously, you haven't been practicing crazy 8's. You can't hide from us, we have ways to discover your deepest, most personal secrets. We still love ya but your gonna screw up and we'll be there!!!! So pick out our clothes and you know what to do next... hey Ho#2, you know what comes later!! HA HA HA. -The Love twins (Homie & Joker)

To the Fake Twins: Nice try guys, it almost worked. Try getting an original name, then we'll converse a bit. But until that time BEWARE Homie has ways to find you, and will torment you worse than the real twins!! (fish killing and all). Homie has spoken!

To the Pigs in Fox: Boy it seems like you're not wanted anywhere. Even the sisters kicked you out. Why don't you take a hint, smarten up or GET OUT!!

To STIFF #1: It was a fun weekend. Good talks and many drinks!! You're an awesome kid and when are we going to Dan's room?? Well stay a stiff!! Love Stiff #2

M.C. Lanni: no more tears (for both of us) We'll be happy some day. I wonder if the MEGA MOOS ever cry? I bet they don't. No more NFL parties for us... Well, Elaine, I mean Michelle, I love ya! MacD

To the Ice--Ice Booby: has your neck healed yet? Hows that grain alcohol doing? Well I'm glad to know you won the race! We thought we put you to bed, but you were only fooling us. You're stiff and I love ya. And beware because you will pay for your "practical joke" Love MacD

To Cuz: You say you love me- even when you're sober. I never said it to you but I love you too. You are definitely a stiff--you're awesome! So what are we doing next Fri. night. No more ___parties for us! Oh well, we'll get through it. Love MacD

HO#2: "Oh where oh where has my little Ho gone, Oh where oh where can she be? She's at home with a poultry disease, wishing she could be with 3" Homie is just a lyrical machine this week. But wait, what do I see, HO NO, its my HO. She's back, she's pissed and she wants to know who the hell the twins are! Welcome HOme. Homie

HO#1 & HO#2: Remember D&D like shrimp, sirloins, filet mignon, and very expensive drinks. I hope you make it but a week is a long time. Good Luck. P.S. What time did the WAR end? sorry for my mood, you understand. (from D1) D&D of the 3

Fourth Floor BEWARE!!! The walls have ears!!!!

To the Mystery Twins: Now that you've had your fun, why don't you make yourself known. It's obvious you know who we are, so what are you afraid of?? Let me leave you with this little Homie rap: (give me a funky beat) You better watch out, you better identify, Cause if you don't you better run and hide, Homie gonna find you somehow! (and I'll breakdown your door andment-allly torment you--forthrestofourmiserablelife!) (I said give me a funky beat) Homie has spoken!!

HOMIE AND THE HENDERSON (PART II): We join our superheroes late thurs. night "Hondo, how many is that?" "I really don't know Homie, but I love you, you know that" Sitting at paradise bar was Horta, the drinker of many. Little does our heroes know, he possessed the magic of tolerance. There are lingering questions from that night: How DID Homie get married? How many did Hondo drink? Will HO#2 eve return? Where did Horta get this magical tolerance? Will the Red Sox ever win the world series? These questions and more will be answered next week. The adventure continues...

An Ill-Wind Blows... With a subtle rumble of thunder and brief skein of lightning in the clouds above, a lone figure appears on the steps of Cumnock Hall. It's been a while since I visited the Personals Page, but I have always been a constant reader. Now, I see something that is not right, and am moved to speak upon that issue: It is quite humorous to see how many incompetents rear their heads upon this page to defame a group of people they have never met. The issue I speak upon is: Where do clowns like Mudstain, Joker, and The Home Team get off prodding such childish insults at ULowell Zoo Crew? signed, once again, Sulaco

Dano- can I be a special friend? I'd like that alot. How about the Halloween Dance? Love, shelf

Pepper: What's up with all the guys? Remember-friends share! No More DAN! Don't you love it? I thought so. Love, Shelf

To Ed Lover's Lover: You two-timing slut, stay away from him. Ed Lover's Lover's Lover

To Mudstain: I know Sci-Fi and many of the ULowell Zoo Crew. I also know you. I know that their "cause" is just and honorable, yours is not. What do you expect to accomplish with your stupidity? Will you change the very nature of what the Zoo Crew is? No. Will you cause the Zoo Crew to leave the Personals Page? No. Will you accomplish ANYTHING more than create a mild annoyance in the grand scheme of things? No. In the style of the music groups your worship so readily, I say "if you don't like what you see here/ get the *%&^ out." (-Extreme) You have degenerated this page into name-calling. You are a child: grow up. -Sulaco

To the Joker and all other Detractors: Yeah, right: the Zoo Crew, is going to pack up and leave the Personals just because YOU said so. Voltaire said "I may not agree with what you say, but I will defend to the death your RIGHT to say it," and I shall defend the Zoo Crew and their presence upon this page against the likes of a scum-lapping *%&$bags like yourselves. THE JOKER: Five wasted lines of 'idiots, idiots, idiots' does not constitute a slam. Just because I call you a moronic sack of *%&% with neither brains nor gender does not mean I scored a real slam; it just means I was being correct. -Sulaco

Roomies- What can I say? Two of you made the chart once again. I really am pulling out of it, after the last one. You can take all of my winnings. Whatever they may be. BUM- try and stay next time. And stop banging on the walls in the middle of the night.

Snuggle, One down, one more to go. You have yet to prove us wrong!!!!!!

Wanted!! One man for just one hour, to make out and cuddle. Reply to hntoad. -Roomie

Hornoad: Maybe I'd respond, maybe. Maybe if your name had nothing in common with, say, a frog... typenAP

Scoop Queen, So what really did happen that night? Anything you would like to share with us? After all, you know everything about us!!! Tell us, Enquiring minds want to know!!!!

The 101/129 Posse- Shelf, Pepper, Snowballs, Gloire- How's it going? Aren't these sights too much to handle? pretty cool! GLOIRE- Get out of the basement! Shelf- nice letters! So what will it be, contestant 1, 2, or 3? -Pepper- No more husband! Snowballs- You're free too. I'll have to talk to those Fox guys for you. -Dimples

Hey God! So you're finally getting a personal. Howz it feel? And howz that 16 year old witch? I don't know about you, you're too picky. Beat up any little girls lately? I hope you didn't leave any black and blues. How about that Halloween costume idea-remember, you idea, not mine -Dimples

Hey God- Good job on those Black & Blues with Dimples! I love the 'stang. Gotta let me drive it!! Love Shelf

Hey Dimples & Snowballs: I love you guys. Best Friends forever! 101/129 Posse is the best! Gloire Stop the Studying!!! Result: Brain fry! Ditz- no more neck bites, OK? Love Shelf

Pologirl, maybe we should have stuck to our original plans! Congrats on how you handled yourself you did good! keep it up Love, Me

Dan2 You two are the best, let me be the first to tell you. I owe you two my life. Neither of you deserve the *JO%&^ I put you through. Never again. I've had a tough few weeks, but things are looking good now that my chicken pox are gone & Thanx for putting up with me, putting me to bed, feeding me chocolate (HAHA!) and remember I am NOT hostile. Love, Ho#2

Did you know that six times ULowell's population die of hunger every single day?! Two thirds of these people (40,000) are children under five years of age!! Do you want to help these people? YES, YOU CAN make a difference!! You can join me and tens of thousands of people nationwide to feed the world!! There will be a general info. meeting on November 5 at 3:30 in Lydon/Alumni Library. Bring a friend and make a difference!! You don't have to commit a lot of time or money to help. Any little bit you can do will save a life. Please help support Oxfam America '90

Hunger is no accident. Its principal causes are not natural disasters or overpopulation. The roots of hunger are poverty and oppression. The world grows more than enough food to feed everyone. Yet, more people are hungry today than ever before!! The United States (6% of the world's population) consumes more than 25% of its resources!! Is this the kind of place you want to live in?? I certainly don't!!!!

KLW- Hi stranger!! I figured that sending you a personal was more effective than calling you because every time we try to meet, we end up missing each other... So, anyway, what's up?? We gotta talk soon; if we don't I'm gonna go crazy!! I have lots to tell you so you had better call me or stop by sometime soon -OK?? I have a story about a guy that I think you will appreciate... well, two guys... one of them is from our 12:00 class 2nd semester freshman yr. and the other is his friend... KIT!!!! -KLW

To skirt man, Your different colored sneakers really turn us on- They're just so right to put those spurs upon. You say the New Kids ain't your thing- But we saw them on your key ring. Our Nelson Tape is really out of sight- We want you to play them on Thursday Night. Your argile socks are really quite a dream- They're just the thing to make us cream. We rank on your choice of stage clothes- Cuz you wear your choice with no pantyhose. Despite all of those facts- don't worry, relax- We think you cool and New Kids rule! Love, Muffy and Bambi

To my sweet little love-slave Bambi, I haven't been myself lately since our little squabble. It's all so silly. How can I convince you that I don't want Greenteeth? She's nothing compared to your sensuous beauty. The band and I miss you little "mixed vegetables and dips" routine. Also, Steven promised me you could be my next plaything. I am hardly wait. Oh, and by the way, the guys all say your sons are ding fine. One more thing- I have to make a confession. Remember the promise I made you the last time we were together? Well, I got selfish for your unadulterated love so, well, I think we might have another bundle of love soon. Until we meet again our love (esp. mine) is yours! Joe P. (AKA Muffy)

To Mudstain: This "New" Insult Campaign would almost be interesting, if it were not the same child like attacks with a new name. Even a lower life form such as yourself should be able to muster up enough mental activity to say something at least thought provoking. Spare us another round of worthless personals, and spend some time attempting to be human. Thanking God i'm not you, SpaceMan Spiff

To The. (I am assuming that you had more of a name, and there was some clerical error.) So, am I assume, that that snitch of which whom, I'm searching was known from the start? Is it ok to guess, that this whole thing is a mess, of which I played both parts? If the answer is yes, then I'm blushing I guess, and I apologize straight from the heart. Dobus

Jester: You (like the Zoo Crew) are nothing but a big, stupid piece of crap. Why don't you crawl back to your slime-infested home and suck on some of your infected anal scabs or something..I'm sure you must need food like everyone else! Mudstain To the dirt-sucking Zoo Crew: 1. I have no "henchman," and if you placed as much importance on "friendship" as you claim to you'd stop treating a certain common link like crap. 2. I can write my own loco mail, just ask Raven, the loser. 3. I have no ego, I just like seeing you dickheads flip out over nothing. 4. Die off and die, you bunch of stupid, lint-eating, pus-infested warthogs. Mudstain, who takes no War advice from Jim horse To Rita: thanks for last Thursday. I really appreciate it!! Your favorite journalist

Dear HBBG, Am I on the schedule for this weekend at all. I hope so. Love Forever, HBBM

Two quotes; too easy? signed, SCI-FI

TO MUDBRAIN: 41 replies next week? For what? For YOU? We wouldn't bother getting all of us together for a REAL threat, never mind one as impotent as you. Your "insult campaign" has done nothing except make The Page look like an ELECTION campaign. The Page would do better with white spaces in place of your lame droppings. YOU aren't worth the time of day, never mind a third of my weekly personals. signed, SCI-FI (who has LOTS of friends, a social life, class[es], and NO time to waste on someone named after the back of his own underwear.)

TO THE NON ZOO CREWER: I don't think we ever really claimed 'dominance' on the Personals Page, so therefore, we don't have anything to lose! As for us WRITING on The Page: We WILL. And we will continue to STAY on The Page until we graduate, or until we decide not to bother with it anymore. We shall remain on The Page, and no amount of "Fudgetain's Insult Campaigns" or boobs like The Joker or yourself will coerce us to leave. -The U. LOWELL ZOO CREW

TO FUDGESTAIN: If you 'don't want to know,' then stop taking so many bits of information about us from your 'henchman.' We don't write 'insulting personals' for Revenge; we also don't write them for 'fun.' The type of goon that insults other people just to make himself feel like a bigger person is a breed of humanity that we thought had become extinct, but if you want to be a throwback, go right ahead. Your attempts to liven up The Page have only succeeded in making the personals a page full of insane garbage that no one else bothers to read; this Page hasn't been THIS lame since Overlord tried to 'depose' the Type-setter. Come back when you have a REAL problem with us, and not just your usual puke. -The U LOWELL ZOO CREW PS-YES! We all DO have hemhorrhoids! We named 'em all MUDSTAIN!

TO CAMPUS MOM AND BROWNIE: In the most ideal spirit of helping other people, you have both come through and exemplify everything we try to do make everyone's lives a little easier. You are fantastic people and we're grateful to know you both. CAMPUS MOM: For making a HUUUUGE effort to organize aid to help repair someone's home after it burned, you really showed drive. If you want to be a Prov. with the Crew, let us know. (Welcome aboard!) BROWNIE: For overcoming fears and self-doubts, and 'sounding your barbaric YAWP over the rooftops of the world,' you deserve The Blue! (Happy Birthday!) -The U LOWELL ZOO CREW

TO CHEESEHEAD: Why, YES, you silly slut! I AM! Gimme a BIIIIIIIG kiss!!! SMOOOCH!!!!!! -Commander Riker

SGA Toilet Bowl Team Word of the day was "Sportsmanship," hey guys? Stop crying Tom! RMR

Tracy Capone - Tennis

Tracy Capone, a junior sociology major from Westford, is currently playing #2 singles and #1 doubles for the University of Lowell Women's Tennis Team. This season, Tracy has posted 14 wins in the #2 singles spot including 5 wins at the New England Collegiate College Championships. Tracy captured the #2 singles crown at the NECC tourney by defeating her opponents from New Haven, Bridgeport, New Hampshire College, Franklin Pierce and SCSU, all in straight sets. Tracy has proven to be a very tough competitor, pulling out four 3-set matches this season and 3 of the 4 tiebreakers she has played. "You know when it is close that Tracy will pull it out", Captain Donna Leonard adds. "She is just so tough. You really have to play good tennis to beat her because she is a smart player." Tracy is known for her consistency, athleticism and "killer" backhand. "Tracy is very quick. She will run down every ball. She has great foot speed.", says Leonard.

At the very competitive #1 doubles spot, Tracy and partner Joy Higgins have an impressive 9-1 record. This duo have combined their strong singles play to form a dynamic doubles team. They have faced several extremely aggressive teams. "Tracy is a great partner. I enjoy playing with her; we have been very successful against some very good teams.", states Higgins. Tracy and Joy may have a chance to avenge their only loss in the New England Championships this weekend. The sole loss came at the hands of Merrimack College in a close 2-set loss, 6-4, 6-4.

Tracy transferred from University of Rhode Island in the Fall of 1989. At U.R.I., Tracy played both soccer and tennis. Last fall, playing #3 singles for the Chiefs, she was undefeated during the regular season, posting a perfect 11-0 record. Other honors for Capone in 1989 include, NECC #1 doubles champion and #3 singles runner-up in the New England Championship.

Tracy graduated from Westford Academy in 1988, where she was an accomplished athlete. Tracy played on the varsity soccer, basketball and tennis teams. Tracy captained her high school tennis team and played #1 singles during her sophomore, junior and senior years.

Soccer Beats WPI

After a 4-3 double-overtime loss to Southeastern Massachusetts (Oct. 15) extended ULowell's losing streak to six games, the Chiefs ended the drought with one of the biggest victories in team history. The Chiefs defeated Worcester Polytech, 1-0, when sophomore midfielder Jim Young (Lowell HS/Lowell, MA) scored with eight seconds left in the game.

The win was ULowell's first ever in 16 tries against the Engineers. WPI had a 12-0-3 all-time advantage over the Chiefs entering the game and won last year's meeting, 6-0. The Chiefs out shot the Engineers, 14-11, and sophomore goaltender Brian LaCroix (Central Catholic/Lawrence, MA) made 11 saves for his third shutout of the season. Senior Bob Kitsos (Haverhill HS/Bradford, MA) assisted on Young's goal. The win evened ULowell's non-conference record at 5-5.

The Chiefs made a valiant comeback effort against SMU after falling behind 3-0 in the first half. Early in the second half, senior Joe Gilligan (Salem HS/Salem, MA) and sophomore Jay Dauphinais (Dracut HS/Dracut, MA) scored goals 33 seconds apart, then senior John Pion (Ponaganset/No. Scituate, RI) scored his team-high fourth goal to tie the game with 1:05 remaining in regulation. After a scoreless first-overtime, SMU won the game with less than two minutes remaining in the second overtime.

Volleyball Gets Huge Win Over Bentley

by Eric Pastore

This could be shaping up to be one of those Celtics-Lakers type rivalries. The ULowell Volleyball team met up with the Bentley Falcons for the third time this season. Earlier this year, the Chiefs beat the Falcons for the first time ever. Bentley, trying to prove it was a fluke, hosted their own tournament on the weekend of October 12th and 13th, and knocked the Chiefs out of the semi-finals and the tournament. Revenge though, is 'oh' so sweet. On the 12th in the 'war to settle the score', the Chiefs travelled to Bentley, saw Bentley, and beat Bentley. Trailing two games to one, the Chiefs bore down and won the final two games impressively, 15-8 and 15-6, and walked away with a 3-2 win. Junior Marybeth Fleming was immense, racking up 32 kills in the five games, while the ever dominant Christine Leonard contributed 17 of her own. Junior setter Michelle Roy averaged an amazing 13.2 assists per game against the Falcons. Coupled with a 3-1 win at Eastern Nazarene on the 16th, the Chiefs now stand at 24-4.

With what is becoming an explosive offensive team and a great defensive team, the Chiefs have dominated opponents consistently all year. The win over Bentley, showed a lot in the character of the team as well as in their talent. When they play, they show their strength as a team and as a family. These Chiefs, it seems, are destined for post-season play.

University of Lowell Chiefs' Co-Players of the Week Don Bartlett Bob Cote

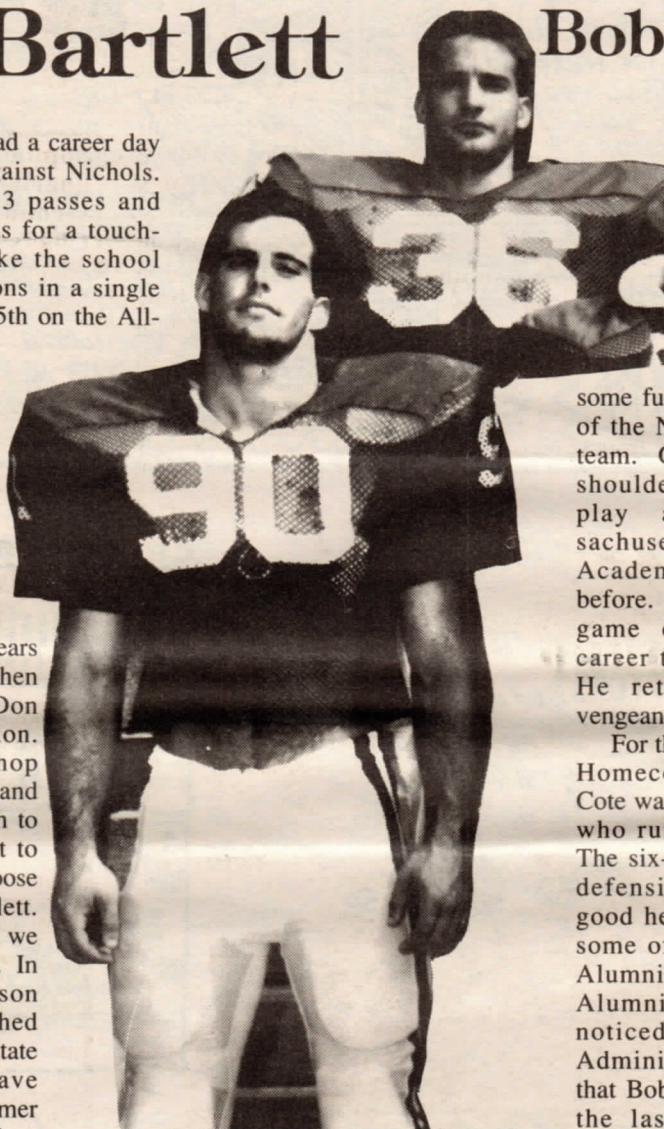

By Rayanne Drouin

Don Bartlett (36) had a career day this past Saturday against Nichols. Bartlett picked off 3 passes and returned one 58 yards for a touchdown. Bartlett broke the school record for interceptions in a single season with 7 and is 5th on the All-Time list with 9.

Bartlett, a senior accounting major, is in only his second year of football at the University of Lowell. Bartlett didn't try out for the football team until last season. He played football for 8 years in Pop Warner, but when high school started Don had a difficult decision. He went to Bishop Guertin High School and his parents wanted him to choose only one sport to concentrate on. "I choose basketball," said Bartlett. "I really enjoyed it and we had a very good team". In Bartlett's senior season Bishop Guertin finished 23-1, losing only the state championship to Dave Barry's (ULowell's former basketball star) Nashua High team 66-65.

After years of not playing varsity sports Don tried out for the football team. With his natural ability (4.55 40-yard dash, great jumper with good hands) he made an immediate impact. Tri-captain Mike Burns went down with a shoulder injury early in the season and Bartlett step right in. "At first he was a little shaky," commented cornerback "Prime-time" Dennis Rich. "But by the end of the season he was solid."

Now, Bartlett is a key member of one of the best defensive backfields in New England. "Don's one of the finest Safeties in the conference," noted cornerback Bobby Scaccia. "His speed and quickness is an essential part of our defense." Sophomore safety, and Don's back-up, Tim Vale points out: "When you play hard-nosed football like Don does, good things will happen (interceptions, blocked passes and fumbles)." Bartlett leads the team in two of those categories, interceptions (7) and Pass Break-ups (5).

by Rayanne Drouin
Robert F. Cote (90) had a little 'Welcome Back' party on Saturday afternoon. 'Mom' and 'Dad' watched on as 'Junior' had some fun at the expense of the Nichols football team. Cote injured his shoulder and couldn't play against Massachusetts Maritime Academy the week before. It was the first game of his 4-year career that he missed. He returned with a vengeance.

For the 1,750 Nichols Homecoming crowd, Cote was a rotten spoiler who ruined their day. The six-foot 200 pound defensive end was so good he even spooked some of Lowell's own Alumni. "The Lowell Alumni at the game," noticed an Athletic Administrator, "agreed that Bob Cote would be the last person they would want to be chased down a street by."

Cote chased Nichols QB David Campopiano all over the field, sacking him 2 1/2 times (for 39 yards lost) and forcing him into making bad passes. For the day, Cote recorded eleven tackles (9 solos), blocked a punt and recovered a fumble, and that was only in 3 quarters.

So far this season, Cote has 11 sacks for 101 yards lost. He was named NEFC defensive player of the week three times, was named to the ECAC honor role twice, and was named ECAC defensive player of the week once. Not bad for someone that the opponents key their offenses against.

"Cote thinks he's awesome!"
"Well, is he?"
"Yes."

Second Half Lifts Football Chiefs Over Nichols

by Eric Pastore

The gridders traveled to Dudley, Mass on the 20th, to take on Nichols in the Bison Bowl. The Chiefs have been playing great football since their loss at Plymouth State, so one would not have expected them to have a problem with the 3-3 Bisons. Though Lowell routed Nichols 38-8, the score doesn't indicate the scare they received in the first half.

The first quarter was marred by turnovers, and inability to move the football, for both teams. After receiving the kickoff, Nichols went nowhere on their opening drive. On their third play from scrimmage, Nichols quarterback David Campopiano was intercepted by senior cornerback Don Bartlett, who probably had no idea of the day he was about to have. Bartlett may have returned the interception for a touchdown if he was not tripped up by teammate Ron Anderson. Despite great field position, the Chiefs could not capitalize. On the fourth play of the drive, a fourth and four from the Nichols 23, the Chiefs went for the first down unsuccessfully. This pattern pretty much continued throughout the quarter. It was at the end of the quarter through that the Chiefs started taking charge for their first score. In the final four plays, senior defensive end Bob Cote had two sacks for 21 yards, while senior Jim Divita and junior Derek Larson combined for another.

Faring a fourth and 14 at their own 27, Nichols began the second quarter having to punt. Cote came through with yet another big play, blocking the punt where Scott Boyle recovered it at the Nichols three. This time, Lowell capitalized as a Billy Rizos pass bounced off the pads of intended receiver Tom Lafferty, and ended up in the hands of receiver Tom Bradley. A Dennis Anselmo kick made the score 7-0. The score remained this way to the end of the half, with the highlight being Bartlett getting his second interception of the day.

Whatever coach Dennis Scannell said to his troops at half-time seemed to work. The Chiefs took the second half kickoff and proceeded to drive the ball down the Bison's throat. With a textbook drive, the Chiefs marched 62 yards in nine plays, finished off by a two yard touchdown plunge by fullback Brian Gauthier. With the defense getting its own turn in the second half, it came out just as fired up as the offense. Nichols could find no sanctuary against the ferocious pass rush and solid tackling. After junior strike to Bradley. On the first play of Nichols ensuing drive, Campopiano was intercepted by what was becoming his version of Freddy Krueger, Don Bartlett. He completed the nightmare, returning the ball 58 yards for a touchdown. It was Bartlett's third interception of the game.

The fourth quarter saw much of the same domination by the Chiefs. Lyons hit Bradley with an 11 yard touchdown pass, to make it 35-0. As if it wasn't enough, place kicker Anselmo did his best imitation of Raul Allegre, hitting a school record 46 yard field goal. Nichols did manage to score in the period, resulting in the 38-8 score.

As a team, the Chiefs racked up 356 yards of total offense, only a shade below their 371 yard average. Defensively the Chiefs held Nichols to 163 total yards, and an astounding -20 yards giving up 190 yards per game and only 76 rushing yards.

Individually, there isn't enough time to gibe accolades to everyone who deserves them. To touch upon a few, defensive end Bob Cote seems a good place to start. After missing last week with a shoulder injury, he made up for lost time, making a shambles out of the Bison's offense. He sacked quarterback Dave Campopiano 2 1/2 times, finishing with 11 tackles, a blocked punt and a fumble recovery. In doing so, Cote was named N.E.F.C. Defensive Player of the Week for the third time this season. As if Cote wasn't enough pressure for Campopiano, cornerback Don Bartlett picked him off three times, setting a school record with seven interceptions this season. Bobby Scaccia, Timmy Vale and Johnny Batts also had interceptions. Jim Divita and Derek Larson also had big defensive games, combing for 16 tackles and one sack. On offense, Tom Bradley had a great day with three touchdown receptions, giving him six on the year. Full-back Brian Gauthier is approaching a milestone. With 40 yards rushing, he now stands only 136 away from joining former running backs Jim Moguaro and Gary Errico in the exclusive club of gaining over 2,000 career rushing yards. With his offensive line, the 'HOGS', he should have no problem doing so.

Overall it was a great team effort for the Chiefs who now stand at 6-1. They host undefeated Bentley College at Cawley Memorial Stadium on Saturday the 27th. Odds are that the Chiefs will change Bentley's unblemished record.

NOW 19 SALONS IN BOSTON AND GROWING! LOWELL SUPERCUTS WELCOMES BACK STUDENTS!

SUPERCUTS has changed the way America cuts its hair...and we're doing it for you! That's why we want you to know a little bit about us.

SUPERCUTS began in 1975 when two professional hairstylists realized that the only place to get a haircut was an old-fashioned barber shop or an expensive beauty salon. The barber shops offered value but not style; the salons offered style but at a high price. And neither one was very convenient for the customer.

So we went back to the drawing board and invented the SUPERCUT - a custom designed haircut at a price almost too good to be true!

THE SUPERCUTS PHILOSOPHY

- High Quality Hair Care Services
- Clean, comfortable

environment

- Professional customer service

Customers should leave SUPERCUTS feeling they were treated with respect and concern, received the very best hair care at a price reflecting an exceptional value, and in the most convenient manner possible.

WHAT IS A SUPERCUT?

A SUPERCUT is a precise, accurate haircut achieved by using a unique haircutting technique accomplished in a fraction of the time most other haircutting techniques require...and it's so foolproof we GUARANTEE every SUPERCUT to your satisfaction.
